L. L. Cleveland

At this time, it is fitting that we speak of our beloved principal, Mr. Leslie L. Cleveland. As we have passed the years in the Cambridge High and Latin School, we have learned to realize his untiring and watchful care for us. From the time when we entered the school as freshman, we have grown to appreciate his sterling qualities and true worth. Now, as we depart from the portals of the school, we look back on the years spent under his guidance as among the most fruitful and happy ones of our lives, and we sincerely hope that as time rolls on, we may prove ourselves worthy of the training that we have received from him.

Dedication

Because of our admiration for an efficient master and true friend, who advised and guided our steps through this last year,

we, The Class of 1931, respectfully dedicate this Year Book to

Thomas Long Bramhall

THOMAS LONG BRAMHALL
Assistant Headmaster

---

Mr. John Whorisky was more than our musical director, he was an integral part of the school. There was never a Senior Drama, an assembly, an operetta, a school activity of any kind that did not have John Whorisky's hand behind it. He was a man tremendous in spirit and laughter. We can still see him, his massive head and snow-white hair, as with uplifted baton he guided his choruses, his glee clubs, his orchestras. John Whorisky was a mighty inspiration, we loved him best for himself. His achievements were varied and great, John Whorisky was greater.

LOUISE MADELINE DRAPER

The untimely death of Louise Draper has brought sorrow to the hearts of all her classmates. We can not adequately express in print our great bereavement. Her character was symbolic of all that is good, kind, and noble. The name Louise Draper is inseparably associated in our minds with an earnest and successful student, as well as a loyal friend.

Prologue

At last the curtain has fallen upon the drama of our high school days, concealing the cast of actors who have worked patiently and diligently to insure themselves of its success. By turning the pages of this book, we may at any time be present once more as our drama progresses from the beginning to the end. As our gaze travels across each page, perhaps now and then it will pause on the face of a friend who will bring our thoughts surging out of the depths of memory into the shallow waters of the present.

Little children tremble with awe and excitement as their fingers touch a chest buried long ago by reckless pirates. They know that a turn of the key will lay before their eyes all the jewels and wonders of a plundered city of days gone by. We, too, shall feel a flood of excitement tingling through our veins as, after many years have buried the athletic, social, and scholastic events which took place during our four years at school, we shall see them once more laid before our eyes in such a complete and vivid manner as to convince us that they took place only yesterday. Through the tireless efforts of our instructors and classmates we have in our possession a most finished and delightful account of our high school days in Cambridge High and Latin School.

Dreamers, we are, in a world of reality,
Visioning our Utopia of the Yet-to-be;
Shackled with bonds of the hopefulness of youth,
We'll mount to the heights of righteousness and truth;
Afar is a vision to which our hearts cleave;
Then onward, be faithful, great things we'll achieve;
Our cherished ideals, we'll keep to the fore,
Be fearless, and honest, and brave evermore.

Builders, we are, in a world full of strife,
As we add stone by stone to the Temple of Life;
All of the past is ours to take
And that of the future is ours to make,
With courage to work, with effort supreme,
We'll fashion the building conformed to our dream;
Each day sees its growth, as our visions arise —
Success, the achievement, we'll claim as the prize.

Then let us with courage go onward through life,
Fashion our lives to conquer in strife;
Hold high our ideals, that we may attain
The kind of success that really means gain,
Faith in our Maker, and contact by prayer,
Brotherly kindness to men everywhere;
And as we work on and strive for the goal,
Our reward will transcend the dreams of our soul.

Class Song

Oh, Alma Mater! thee we've loved,
Though on thy judgment's scroll
Is writ the tale of our misdeeds
For which you've taken toll.
Yours is the guiding light which held
Secure our wayward feet,
Yours is the love which shall not fail,
Though we no more shall meet.

As now we go our way to make,
Your memory ever dear,
Shall help us on our path of life
Though you may not be near,
A thought of you shall bring again
A longing tried and true,
To light our path and guide us on
In loyalty to you.

Tune of - "America The Beautiful"

MARTIN MURPHY

The year was 1927, Squeak, squeak, squeak sounded our newly polished shoes as we traveled across that interminable space from sidewalk to door. Awed, we read the sayings over the entrances, a feat never again accomplished, and then timorously we opened the door of the school that was to bring us so much joy and sorrow in the next four years. All that memorable year we tiptoed through the corridors uttering a word only now and then. Most of these were used to ask directions, for the second and third floors were nothing less than unknown pathways to us. Even the first floor seemed a perfect maze of corridors with rooms jutting out at all angles. In spite of the unexpected corners, we arrived on time for both school and classes. Some of us were so ambitious that we even did our homework! Perhaps that accounted for many names on the honor roll. However, not even those on the honor roll wore other than the traditional dress. Everywhere, at first, were Boston bags, mostly new ones. The prevailing mode for boys was a pair of knickers and sneakers. The crowning fashion, however, was that of the girls in wearing black gym stockings carefully rolled to meet the top of high, immaculately white sneakers. Remember those days and those styles? That year we had our first class day, with everyone wearing our class color, red. By the end of that comparatively inactive year, (we didn't have to wear much of a path to either Miss Russell's or Mr. Downey's office), we were apparently acclimated. We even knew where the hall was!! That summer vacation was spent in eager anticipation of what was to happen next year.

It was now 1928. Scuff, scuff, scuff, we shuffled up the path, pulled open the door, and then wandered through the building trying to find our home rooms for the incoming year. Soon we were settled with new friends and old in the new territory on the second floor. Since the class was smaller than originally, the pupils began to move more as a unit than as many scattered groups. This unit became so active that we actually attended all the sports, and a few of the most daring really went to dances and other social affairs of the school. School, that year, grew less formidable, and the teachers seemed not quite so terrifying as before. Indeed, some few found that homework was not so important as it had first seemed to them. Consequently, the honor roll diminished to the obvious sorrow of our teachers and deans. This year quite a path was worn to the doors of Miss Driscoll and Mr. Bliss. Let us hasten to assure you that all relations made at the end of these paths were pleasant, not strained. Just as happy were the Sophomores in their new attire that began to flourish with silk stockings for the girls, and long trousers for the boys. At last, we thought, we were grown up. Perhaps we were some, but that summer the growth proceeded at an amazing pace.

Another year had passed, and now it was 1929. Clump, clump, clump, we marched, vigorously pulled open the door, let it slam, and then humming or even whistling sauntered through the corridors. We were Juniors!

Think of it — upper classmen! At last the room numbers began to have some definite arrangement whereby they could be found without too much trouble. Now we knew the teachers, their systems of marking, the mystery of assemblies and all in all were pretty sure of ourselves, so sure of ourselves that we neglected our homework, because wasn't recreation more important than school work? Emphatically yes! All year we strolled nonchalantly to school and classes arriving with one minute to spare if we were lucky. The class became definitely organized and elected the following as officers: President, Edward Barry; Vice-President, Evelyn Cummings; Treasurer, Daniel Doherty; Secretary, Marion Mader. Soon class rings and pins that were and are, the envy of the other classes began to appear. These stunning reminders of school days were carefully and wisely chosen by the Pin Committee consisting of: Elizabeth Grant, Chairman; Eleanor Bradley, Ruth Cleverly, Bernice Gilman, Gertrude Welch. Then came the gala event of the year. The Junior Prom with all its splendor! A thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent at the Hotel Commander which had been selected as "the spot" by the Prom Committee. This committee was made up of: Paul Dugan, Chairman; George Curtin, Frank Davy, Effie Perkins, Katherine Pray. Let us add, with justifiable pride, that the Prom committee held their heads high in the air after all the compliments had been received. But don't think that this was the only exciting event. Oh no! Our classmates were active in all the sports. So active that the Junior girls' basketball team won the school championship. We shone not only in sports but in oratory for Joseph Olivo, a member of our class, won the Liberty Prize Speaking Contest. More and more honors for our class. Our classmates turned out as usual to witness all the games, and this time they not only watched, but played. Slowly but surely, that spirit of our class, the eagerness "to do something different", became apparent. Somehow we ploughed through the exams, and found that many of us had passed. The well worn track that leads to both Miss Murray's and Mr. Bramhall's door was considerably deepened by us. No, not always at 8:32 or the day after marks came out, for at any time we dropped in for a friendly visit. Plans for the future were made, shifted, and then put into effect. Soon even this year of fun, joy, and companionship ended. After those who had taken the College Board Examinations had received their marks, the rest of the summer was spent without that nerve-wracking suspense which, in some cases, ended only in chagrin. During that summer we grew old in the respect that we already began to look back as well as ahead. From all reports our classmates enjoyed the summer of 1930 more than usual. Perhaps the memories had something to do with that.

At last it was 1930! Up to the door we rushed, pulled it open, and then raced through the corridors to be met by the breathless greetings of our old friends. Buzz, buzz, buzz, the Seniors were gathering! All through the corridors gay salutations rang, welcoming each of our classmates. How good it was to be back! This year, we soon realized, was to be one of hard work, for would we not be soon leaving the school? After four years of constant association, most of the Seniors knew one another so it was not hard to nominate and elect these officers: President, Joseph Olivo; Vice-President, Evelyn Cummings; Treasurer, Daniel Doherty; Secretary, Marion Mader. The first big event of the season was the Senior Drama, "The Rear Car", held as usual at Brattle Hall. This new type of Senior Drama, a mystery play, was very well done by our actors, and very well received by their audience. The cast was made up of Anastasia Kirby, Virginia Reed, Lynne Wyeth, George Curtin, Ken Daly, Fred Donald, Fabian Markson, Stephen McCormick, William Royce, Frank Tansey, and Bernard Whitman. Elsewhere in this book is recorded an account of their polished portrayal of the characters in "The Rear Car". At the Drama, the K. B. girls blossomed out, and sold candy. The credit of the novelty programs was due to the Senior Drama Committee that included Eleanor Bradley, Chairman; Ruth Cleverly, Virginia Dillon, Dorothy Duffy,

Dorothy Hooker, Mary Sheridan. The most hilarious day of the year was Class Day when all the Seniors wore a touch of our class color, red. Not only did we go back to our Freshman days, but we went so far back that some carried childish toys, and ate luscious lollipops. The dignity, if there ever was any, of the Seniors disappeared. Hair was worn down, bows appeared in profusion, and even the boys were red neckties or ribbons. At lunch time a recreation period for listless Seniors was held, when all could play jump rope. We were surprised to find that none of our old enjoyment in this game had disappeared. Rumor has it that some of the boys played marbles, and we cannot but believe it. All too quickly the day ended, and we were forced to wear our grown up airs again. By this time, of course, we had had our pictures taken for this illustrious book. Departing from custom, the class elected the Photo Reflex Studio as the official photographers. What fun it was to push that button, with no one around to make us nervous! After our pictures had been taken, and class day was but a memory we made an innovation in the usual Senior program. A class dance was held in the gym, and from the faces of those present, it could easily be seen that the idea was well liked. A Senior social was a little different from other events, and everyone enjoyed it. Eventually graduation came and this year in spite of opposition we graduated in the customary dress. A hard fight had been waged for caps and gowns, but the change was rejected. Then came the last event of our Senior year — the Senior Reception! Needless to say, it was the crowning event of the whole school life and after it was over, we looked back a little sadly on the past, for it seemed that we had never enjoyed a year more thoroughly. No doubt the Reception committee with Frank Davy as Chairman, and Mary Cahill, Katherine Pray, George Curtin and Thos. Mahoney as members were happier than we when it was over. Already the last issue of the "Review" had been published by that staff almost entirely made up of Seniors. After all our social life we had to settle down to hard work to prepare for College Board Examinations. The seventeenth of June, always looked forward to with pleasure, became a dread date for it was in the midst of days for examinations. At last it was all over; we were eagerly and nervously awaiting the reports of our attempts. Then we became Freshmen again, or gloried in another year of high school as Post Graduates. Some of us left school to enter the world to earn our livings. Our footsteps faded away, our voices were only occasionally heard in the corridors of Cambridge High and Latin School because now we had truly gone into the world of business and education.

THE SENIOR DRAMA

CAST

NORAH O'NEIL	.....	Anastasia Kirby
RUTH CARSON	.....	Virginia P. Reed
TITUS BROWN	.....	Bernard Whitman
ALDEN MURRAY	.....	George Curtin
OLIVER HANKS	.....	Fabian Markson
SHERIDAN SCOTT	.....	William Royce
KIRK ALLEN	.....	Stephen McCormick
JOHN BLAKE	.....	Kenneth Daly
ROXY	.....	Lynne Wyeth
LUTHER BARNES	.....	Frank Tansey
LUKE CARSON	.....	Fred Donald

The nights that "The Rear Car" stopped at Brattle Hall station were very eventful for those who witnessed the unfolding of this great mystery.

The story of the fated "Rear Car" is a record of events which take place in the private car of a wealthy railroad magnate during the first evening of the journey from Los Angeles to Chicago.

Ruth Carson, the newly discovered and supposed daughter of the wealthy railroad president, Luke Carson, is being taken to her father in Chicago by Alden Murray, the magnate's lawyer. With her is her friend and companion, Norah O'Neil. There is an air of mystery about the car in which they are travelling, and Miss Carson is frightened by low, threatening whispers of unknown origin. Before the train had gone very far on its journey, Sheridan Scott, a young man of good family and a professed amateur detective, wanders into the car and introduces himself to its occupants. Kirk Allen, a lawyer who has known and loved Ruth in California, boards the train and attempts to persuade the girl to return with him. He states that he has reason to believe that she is not the daughter of Luke Carson. As a climax to the first act, Alden Murray is murdered!

DRAMA CAST

Second Row: B. Whitman, K. Daly, Miss Hartigan, F. Donald, F. Markson, G. Curtin.
First Row: S. McCormick, L. Wyeth, V. Reed, A. Kirby, W. Royce, F. Tansey.

After this the plot is unfolded very quickly. Ruth's lover, John Blake, reveals himself and is accused by the jealous Allen of having committed the murder. Sheridan Scott, as the detective, takes charge of the affair and proceeds to uncover the villainous plot. Roxy, a young stenographer who is very grateful for all that Ruth has done for her, has concealed herself in the car and reveals herself to Ruth, warning her that she is in great danger! The climax of the second act is the murder of a conductor by an escaped gorilla!

Mr. Carson, who has met the train on his way from Chicago to meet his daughter, refuses to be persuaded that he and all the passengers must get off the train. Scott has only rather vague suspicions with which to back his argument. All of a sudden still shutters close down over all the doors and windows, excluding any means of escape, and a voice within the walls is heard repeating in a hollow, eerie tone of voice, "Say your prayers." Luke Carson's demented brother feels that he has been wronged by Mr. Carson and has planned to gain his revenge by loosening the last car from the train and sending it and all its occupants to destruction at the bottom of the Great Divide. Roxy's quick-wittedness and Sheridan Scott's quick action save the day and the lives of all the passengers, and Scott gracefully succumbs to the admiration and praise of Norah O'Neil whom he loves.

Under Miss Hartigan's able direction the character created a thrilling and tense atmosphere of which the audience was slightly relieved between the acts by the enjoyable music of the orchestra conducted by Miss Wait.

PROPHECY

The sun is shining brightly, imparting its warmth to the swarming crowds below. The skyline has mounted to new heights until it seems that the huge buildings are contending with the heavens for glory. The older folks are still chasing the younger generation to perdition. Old heroes are being forgotten; new names are blazing the paths of glory. Thus we find ourselves in the City of Cambridge in the early fall of 1951.

Walking down the street, we come to our old familiar school, the age of which serves only to make it the more dear. The tears drop down our cheeks as we stand before it, listening to the happy echoes of the past. Many years have passed, and many and varied are the pursuits we have followed since we last crossed its threshold.

Lillian McDonald has just founded a home for cats. The home was planned by Robert Worden, famous architect. With Clarence Husbands as guardian the cats are sure of an enjoyable stay at "Scratch Patch". Alice Wood has been appointed custodian of the yarn, which is to be unravelled for the entertainment of the kittens. Manley Cohen, well-known physician, has been put in charge of the health regulations. He has at his disposal, a laboratory for research work on how to turn nine lives into eighteen. As assistants, he has Florence Jones and Elizabeth Bramhall. Numerous goldfish bowls are to be placed here and there for the convenience of the tenants. James Landrigan has been appointed keeper of the goldfish. Poor "Bob" Fish works in this miniature aquarium.

The fearless aviator, Daniel Doherty, who surprised the world not long ago by his rapid circuit of the globe, is about to soar again. Leonard Dolan is going with him as pilot. Their destination is unknown, but it generally thought that they are "Heading for better times".

That dapper and lovable gentleman, Paul Dugan is due home in a few days. He left many broken hearts behind him when he departed, three months ago for Europe. When he returns he will form an orchestra. The following girls have been selected for the orchestra: Doris Strauss, piano; Pauline Forgetta, violin; Ruth Cleverley, trombone; Helen Katzen, saxophone; Sophie Isenstein, fife; Barbara Horgan, bass viol; Dorothy Hooker, drum; Catherine Pray, harp; Frances Kitchen, kettle drum; Ruth Hibbard, trumpet; Beatrice Sugarman, bugle; Sylvia Kaplan, piccolo; Phyllis Grace, ukelele; and Noreen Leahy, mandolin. With so many beautiful women to gaze at, Paul should certainly never join the ranks of the "tired bachelor business men".

Helen O'Hara is holding a fete at her home tonight in honor of Helen Geary, the famous opera star, who has just returned from a world tour. Miss Geary has consented to sing for the benefit of her admirers. Anastasia Kirby, the star of the stage presentation "Red-Hot Rhythm", is going to perform a few numbers from her show, with the consent of her glorifying producer, Edward Sugarman. "The Dance of the Three Graces", is to be participated in by Grace Moran, Grace Peloquin, and Grace Richardson. As a fitting climax to the entertainment, Joseph Livoti, who was awarded the Babel Prize for his excellence at the violin, is to play some musical selections. "The Modernists", under the direction of Paul Tiffany, will furnish the dance music.

Israel Berkman and Milton Goldwasser announce that they have perfected a system which, they believe, will prevent future financial panics.

Having finished her research on the thoughts and ambitions of the amphixagora, a member of the fly family, Professor Theodora Louisa Hubbard is writing a book on the subject, "The Amphixagora". It is expected that her disclosures will prove a sensation.

Because of the rapidly increasing number of crooners, among whom are Constantine Panunzio and Donald Clay, a movement is afoot to teach our 1931 alumni how to aim. A course in grapefruit throwing is now sponsored by Thomas Haverty and Lawrence Lohnes.

Michael Hovenanian held a contest recently to determine the most long-winded man and woman. He refuses to disclose the names of the winners.

"Resolved: Politics Should Not Be Mixed in the Judicial Pie" is to be broadcast next Thursday over station B-O-R-E. The speaker on the affirmative side is Senator Edward Crane; on the negative, Judge Bernard Whitman. The program is to be announced by Richard Landigan.

"The American Woman's Confederation" has begun a nation-wide movement to improve the conditions of the poor. Although the members are wealthy, they take much interest in those less fortunate than they. The leaders of this movement are Kathleen Cail, Alice Moakler, Loretta Doucette, and Caribel Conant.

At a national secretaries' convention held recently, the following guests attended: Frances Olken, Anna Jacobson, Bertha Gerstein, Pauline Wallins, Gertrude Welch, Anna Batvinskas, Anna Ratkauskas, Anna Nahabedian, Dorothy Duffy, Lillian Bronstein, and Catherine McCarthy. Only the best social and private secretaries were invited to attend.

A gymnasium exhibition is to be presented by Gertrude Davis and Sally Whitman, both experts in their field.

Irene Grace has just returned from Venice and Florence where she has been studying art. She is now staying at Hotel Ginsmore.

"How to Eat Your Cake and Have It Too", written by Elizabeth Roorbach, can now be bought at all book stores.

Other books recently published are:

"The Secret of Charm", by Ita McCarthy.

"The Latest Theory on the Evolution of Man", by William Millar.

"Whiz Bang; A Story of Chicago", by Arnold Hellar.

"A History of the Modern World", by Charles O'Neil.

"The Art Of Making Excuses", by Harold Rosenthal.

William Greene, scion of a wealthy family, has announced his intention of entering the business world. We are here reminded that Lillian Lawrence and Yvonne Le Bastie opened, last year, a fashionable hat shop.

Kenneth Daly, the popular editor of "Daly's Dandy Daily", is still causing the feminine heart many a flutter.

At an election held recently, Albert Le Shane was nominated and elected Mayor of Cambridge.

Robert Walker, professor in criminology and former Cambridge High and Latin School magician, was found murdered in his classroom. Marion Mader and Evelyn Cummings, the only two persons in the building at the time of his death, were held on suspicion.

Judge George Curtin presided over the trial. The district-attorney, Joseph Olivo, our Senior Class president in 1931, was prosecuting attorney for the State. Marion Mader engaged Earl Matthews for her defense, Evelyn Cummings, had hired Frank Frisoli to defend her. The twelve "good men and true" were: Horace Welch, Margaret Mahan, Jacob Factor, Palm Zappala, Mary Deer, Harry Pratt, Jeremiah Reagan, Florence Shaffer, Mary Haggie, Johanna Neudorf, and Max Wasserman.

When the trial was at its height, Robert Walker himself walked into the courtroom. . . . He was merely trying to prove one of his theories, that there is such a thing as life after death.

Albert Good and Ruby Hayter are now successful psychologists at the Harvard Insane Hospital.

The airster, modelled after the old-fashioned roadster, is the latest style in airplanes. The inventor is Philip Lackey. Manuel Mello is to take an airster up for a trial flight. Mildred MacDonald and Louise Glacken are to ride in the bumble seat. They expect to enjoy their ride very much.

The latest club to be formed is the "K. K. K." Among its members are Gertrude Kelly, Alice Keye, Wanda Karchmazeski, Mary Kelley, Adeline Kassa, Irene Kemler, Alfred Kozlowsky, Camilla Kellegrew, Anna Kelleher, Doris Keene, and Mary King. They refuse to reveal what the three K's stand for. Many guesses have been made as to the significance of the three letters. Lynne Wyeth says "K. K. K." stands for "Krazy Kat Korporation"; Thelma Larson has contributed, "Kuckoo Kids' Klub; Thelma Arthur gives as her guess, "Kash 'n Karry".

Darkness comes upon us before we realize it. Night-time was not meant for daydreams, and so we must leave the old, familiar schoolhouse and hurry home to dreams of a different nature.

THE REVIEW STAFF

Quite to the surprise and joy of all concerned, the Review Staff this year turned out to be rather a clubby affair. This spirit of association which permeates the office (have you ever heard us correcting proofs?) has lightened immeasurably the heavy yet intensely interesting burden of copy-reading, essay-coining, and inter-criticism which is the lot of those elected to carry on the work of our magazine.

In spite of the wide-spread line and cry of financial depression the business end of the "Review" has carried on under the capable direction of the business management. We feel particularly proud this year in having been able to stir the ambitious Freshmen and Sophomore aspirants to write for our annual short story contest; there is usually such a dearth of material from under-classmen. With a friendly and wise faculty advisor and an active, ambitious staff, the "Review" could have had only the successful year it has enjoyed.

CAMBRIDGE HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOL ANNEX

The high school annex was begun in 1923, under the competent direction of Mr. James H. Leonard. Mr. Charles Cote and Mr. Morris Phelan were assigned as teachers. Mr. Carney came in 1928, followed by Mr. O'Brien in 1929, and Mr. Murphy in 1930.

We boast of quite a number of star athletes. Among them are Francis O'Keefe, '31, who starred in football, baseball, and track; and "Pete" Lekakos, '31, who shone in football, baseball and basketball, of which team he was captain. Walter Plausky, '31, also a star, in spite of his size, played as a regular on the baseball and basketball teams.

Another item of note is the organization of the Phi Fraternity. This is a unique club. It has not made the mistake of catering to a select class of pupils, but all who wish to join are accepted, provided they pass the initiation. Therefore, it has become a distinct success. The officers for the Phi Club this year are: John Leahy, President; Francis O'Keefe, Vice-President; Edward Sullivan, Secretary; and Mr. Morris Phelan, Treasurer.

The Annex Alumni will hold its first annual dance in April with the assistance of the Phi Fraternity. Both groups will do all they can to make the affair successful.

This year marks the close of many happy days for the seniors. Mr. Leonard has done much with the aid of the other teachers to give us a complete education. We, the undergraduates, are sincerely grateful for the extra effort on the part of our instructors to teach us, and, at the same time to brighten our schooldays.

THE KLAWHOWJAHAN BJUSTOFF CLUB

This year will always be an outstanding one in the annals of our club. It has marked the beginning of a new era by a strict modification of the constitution and a greater enrollment of members than ever before. We feel that we have succeeded in our aim to promote a spirit of cooperation among our girls through their charity work.

Our Welfare Fund this year, which came from three main sources, helped us to accomplish our purpose, that of doing charitable deeds. The proceeds of the Bridge and Tea held at the Hotel Commander in December were distributed at Christmas among families suggested by the school nurse. The money which we received from selling candy at the Senior Drama, and from our Annual Dance will be used this summer to send deserving girls on a vacation for their health. In addition to these activities the members filled and distributed several baskets of food at Thanksgiving time.

Several bridges at the homes of the members, a Christmas party, a toboggan party, and a theater party comprised our social activities.

We have been aided in every way by the supervision and sympathetic attitude of our faculty advisors, Miss McElroy and Miss Murray. The officers during 1930 and 1931 were: Lynne Wyeth, president; Noreen Leahy, treasurer; and Alice Moakler, secretary.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Another very successful year is recorded in the journals of our club, which has always represented the best in the Household Arts membership. Among many of our activities this year were included a trip to Closes' Candy Factory, in December followed by a visit to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

The first social activity of the club was a Christmas party given by our officers which consisted of a short play and several musical numbers. The officers and the executive committee deserve high praise for their ability to make the first party such an enjoyable occasion.

In March, the club members spent an afternoon at the Cambridge hospital. Under the guidance of the superintendent, we inspected the various parts of the hospital. This was extremely interesting and profitable to all, and especially to those who plan on nursing as a career.

We conducted a "Bridge and Whist", on March 17. This affair proved successful not only socially, but financially. With the profits, we intend to buy a tea set for the dining room.

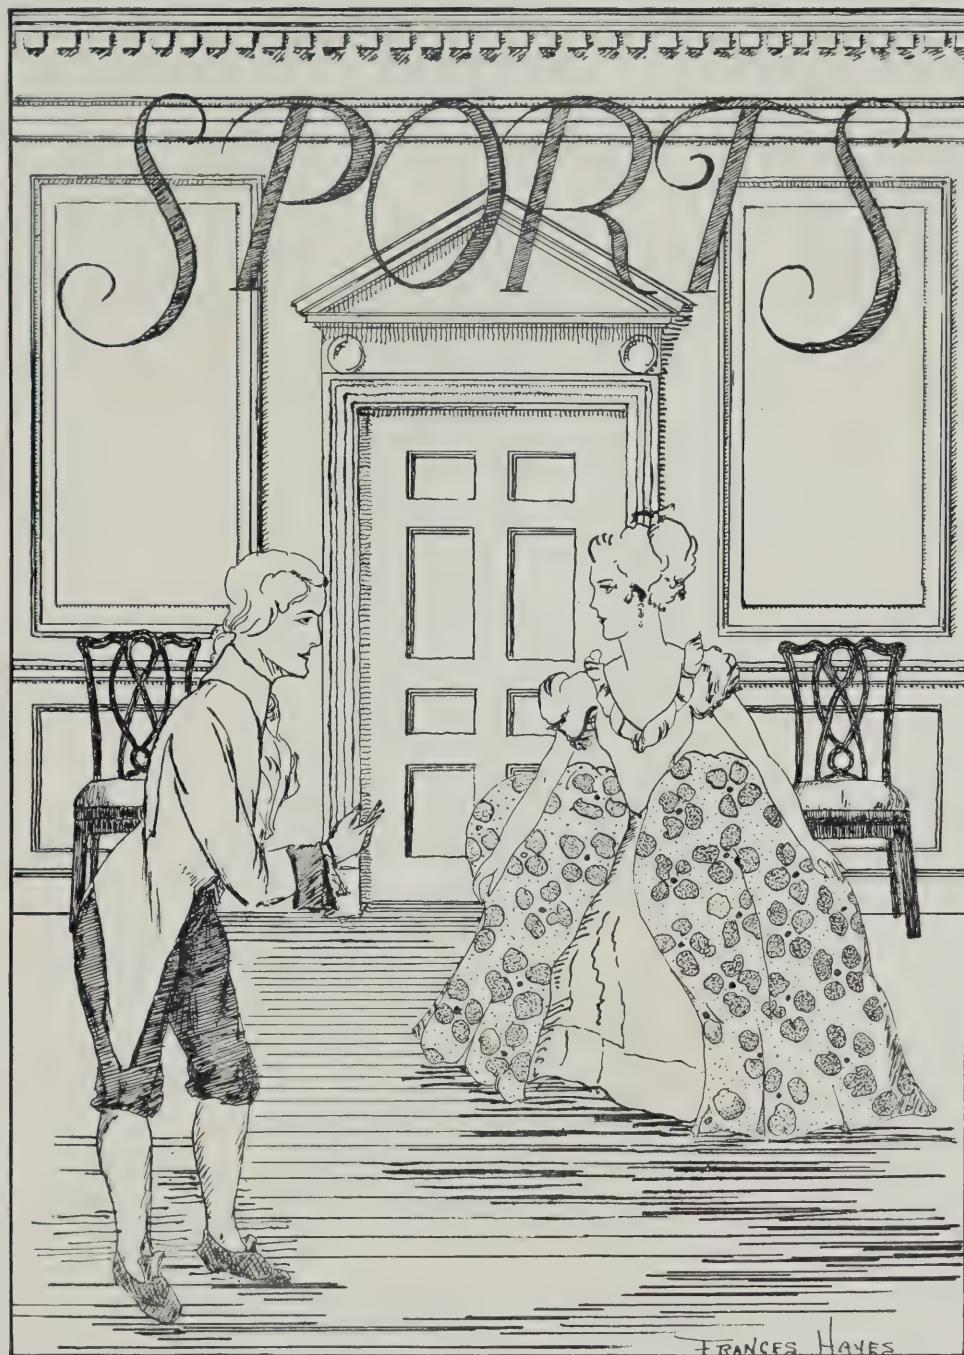

Following a theater party in March, which was enjoyed by the many who attended in a group, we served a formal tea in the dining room. Here several club members made charming hostesses. A very successful year was brought to a close with a party to our club members in June.

At graduation, an award was given to the girl who had achieved excellence in home economics for the past year. This promise of an award aroused the interest of every one in the club, and as a result, there was keen competition.

The club is very fortunate in having as its advisors, Miss Morgan, Miss Harrington, and Miss Mary Breau.

Our very efficient officers for the past year were: President, Frances Hayes; Vice-president, Eleanor Navarro; Secretary, Elizabeth Shine, and Treasurer, Helen Anzelone.

The officers were assisted in their work by an executive committee composed of: Eleanor Bradley, Barbara Emery, Eileen Moran, Virginia Higgins, Josephine Wilkins, Cordelia Weems, and Ruth Parker.

FOOTBALL

The Cambridge Latin football season was not a great success. Yet, few teams were able to score a really decisive victory over the Cantabs. When the team reported for the first time, it was found that a wealth of backfield material remained from the previous year. However, Captain Reardon was the only veteran lineman. To help fill the gap in the line, Lekakos was drafted from the backfield and made over into a tackle where he performed well. The line was heavy but lacking in experience and provided little interference for a light, fast, and experienced backfield. La Ronde, who was elected to captain next year's eleven, did some fine plunging and defensive work. Barry and O'Keefe gained most of the ground, both by running and passing. McKenna proved to be a fine linesman and was the best interferer on the squad. Captain Reardon was chosen by the coaches for their All-Suburban team.

Letters were awarded to Captain Reardon, Barry, Carchia, Cohen, Conlon, Dimitro, Dzendolet, Good, Hamilton, Hopkins, Johnson, Kyrikos, La Ronde, Lekakos, McCarthy, McKenna, McSweeney, O'Keefe, Palmer, Powers, Rogert, Bill and Dave Swisher.

HOCKEY

Although the Cambridge Latin hockey team did not come up to expectations, the season was far from being a failure. The Cambridge six was far better than its record indicates. The first team was fast and on a par with most of its opponents but the replacements were weak. Only three teams were able to show more than a one goal margin of superiority over the Cantabs. The leading scorer was Hovenanian, and he was, also, outstanding in the forward line. Horgan proved to be one of the best defensive centers in the Suburban League, while McSweeney was also a great defensive star. The goal was well taken care of by Hopkins. The right wing position was doubtful throughout the season, but Burke and Derosier did the best work in that position. Reardon, who stood out all season, was chosen on the All-Suburban team. Letters were awarded to Captain Reardon, Burke, Murphy, Horgan, McSweeney, Blais, Hopkins, Mahoney, Derosier, Rooney, Simpson, Hovenanian, and Manager La Ronde.

BASKETBALL

The Cambridge Latin basket-ball team was the most successful of all the Fall and Winter teams. Early in the season, they won five straight games against the strongest sort of opposition. Both of their games with the championship Somerville five were lost by the slight margin of one point. The first team was fast and strong but, as was the case with the hockey team, lacked reserve strength. Plausky featured in every game and was the leading scorer. Captain Lekakos and Rogert excelled in long shooting and turned the tide of many battles in this way. Witham proved to be a fine forward, while Klevis was an outstanding defensive player. The inter-city series with Rindge ended in a tie, each team having won one game.

Prospects for the coming year are very bright, Lekakos and Plausky being the only seniors. Witham, Rogert, and Klevis are sophomores. The second team, also, contains a wealth of sophomores and freshmen.

BASEBALL

The prospects for the Cambridge Latin baseball team are very bright. Six lettermen are available from the 1930 nine. The team is captained by Francis Sullivan, a brilliant fielding short-stop. The infield, though short on hitting strength, is composed of fine fielders. The outfield contains both hitting and fielding strength. The catching berth is being held down by Reardon, a veteran and three-letter man. The burden of the twirling will fall on Kelly, another veteran and left-hander, who will be aided by Mahoney and Rogert, both left-handers. If the pitching staff needs bolstering, Lekakos, a three-letter man and outfielder, will be called on to take his turn in the box. First base will be taken care of by Horgan, a transfer from St. John's High. Second base and short will be held down by Conlon and Sullivan, both veterans. Plansky will cover third base. The outfield of Pudgis, Lekakos, and La Ronde will provide most of the hitting strength of the team. The reserve strength is made up of underclassmen who will be the nucleus of next year's nine.

TRACK

After an absence of three years, track has returned to the Cambridge High and Latin School. A great deal of interest is being shown in track and more than seventy-five candidates reported for the first practice. The team is not expected to be very strong this spring because of the lack of veteran material. Barry is the only letterman remaining from the last track team of 1928. Many football men have turned out in an effort to speed up for the coming season. The real strength of the team is unknown, as many of the candidates have done little or no track work previous to this spring. It is, yet, too early to pick the outstanding performers of the outfit. The team will confine itself to working out around the school until the track at Russell Field hardens.

THE GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Girls' Athletic Association is an entirely independent organization, receiving no financial help from the school or from the athletic department. The purpose is to afford recreation and pleasure to the members, the majority of whom are freshmen and sophomores. (We wish to make it understood that it is not a money-making proposition.) In all the years that the organization has been in the school, it has succeeded in giving to the girls, athletically and socially that which otherwise would have been lacking in their school life.

This year the officers have done exceedingly well in their efforts to make the association a success. Under the leadership of the president, Ruth Hibbard, they have willingly and cheerfully worked in giving the members a good time.

Under the guidance of Miss Brown, the faculty advisor, they have accomplished many things which they could not have done without her kind assistance. She has worked hard for them, and for this, they have learned to love and respect her more than words can express.

The tennis tournament was held during September, for which the doubles' champions, Doris and Emily Long, received a silver trophy. Next came the freshman initiation, which was dreaded greatly by the entering class, but which was soon over. Basketball started for all four classes, but the most important happening of that month was the party given by the upper classmen to the freshmen. Everyone came dressed as a character of some book, and had a wonderful time.

Then the class games were played and the juniors won the championship. For this, each girl on the team received a silver basketball on which were engraved her initials and class.

The G. A. A. gave several well filled Thanksgiving baskets to needy families. The Girl Dance and Christmas Party were welcomed with great rejoicing. Each was a great success.

Very soon after the Christmas vacation the Boy Dance was held in the "gym". In February the annual food sale drew many a fair damsel who was blessed (or cursed) with a sweet tooth. For the first time in many years another girl dance, a masquerade party, was given. A large group turned out and greatly enjoyed the occasion. Swimming practice started at the Cambridge "Y" pool, under the coaching of Miss Ruth Martin of Sargent School. Next, a party was given by the freshmen to the upper-classmen. This also was a novel feature in our form of entertainment. Baseball practice started, and a large group of girls responded to the call for "volunteers".

An eighth grade basketball tournament was held under the supervision of the G. A. A. officers. The association awarded to the winning school a silver loving cup.

The last social even of the year was the picnic which was held at Miss Brown's home at Kendall Green. Everyone enjoyed herself, and looked forward to the next one.

This year has been a very successful one for the Girls' Athletic Association and it wishes all the luck in the world to the officers and members of the organization for the following years.

Varsity Basketball Team

The varsity basketball team is made up of the girls who stand highest on the class teams. They must have kept the training rules, have had good attendance at practices, have passed in all their studies and have been extra good players. The girls are selected from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Teams, and regardless of class, the play together and do their best for the honor of their school.

This year, Ruth Hibbard was again elected as captain, and we are proud to say that this is her second year of holding the captaincy of the varsity. Ruth and Gertrude Lancaster, guards, were a credit to the school for their fine playing. Clara Cormier and Palm Zappala were in the center and certainly did a fine piece of work. Evelyn Cummings, Winnie Burns, and Helen Kinney played forward at one time or the other. Each one was a born forward and was able to put the ball in the basket from practically any position on the floor. As a whole, the team was one to be praised and commented on, for both the spirit and playing were remarkable.

There was also a second varsity, made up of the following girls:—Caribel Conant, Mary Falvey, and Mary Elizabeth Beaver as guards; Clara Maloney, Eileen Moran, and Edna Taylor as centers; and Mildred MacDonald and Anne White as forwards. The playing and teamwork of these girls was fully as good as that of the first team.

We have a great deal of both enjoyment and exercise from this sport and hope that wherever we may continue our studies we shall get as much pleasure from it. Miss Brown is mentioned last because we want her to linger in our memories longer than anyone else. She has stood by us through thick and thin and has sacrificed everything for us. We do not know how to express amply our thanks and appreciation, for she has been fair and square, and has made basketball so pleasant for us that we have looked forward to it every year with eagerness and have hated to see the season draw to a close.

The scores of the games are as follows:—

1st Varsity

C. H. L. S. ....	37	Lexington .....	20
C. H. L. S. ....	16	Medford .....	28
C. H. L. S. ....	34	Somerville .....	17
C. H. L. S. ....	32	Alumnae .....	16

2nd Varsity

The Senior Basketball Team

In the second week of October a large group of girls reported in the "gym" for the first try-out of the season. We, the seniors gave the freshmen the great honor of practicing with us; but, unfortunately, they did not appreciate our good points, as there were quite a few friendly tussels between us. Of course, the seniors were always victorious, much to the chagrin of our "lesser halves". However, under the leadership of our beloved Ruth Hibbard, who has been captain for three consecutive years, we enjoyed every minute of the time which we spent at basketball.

SWIMMING TEAM

First Row: A. Gorstein, D. Duffy, G. O'Sullivan, C. Conant.

With our star player, Ruth Hibbard, and Caribel Conant as guards, we felt that we could hold any pair of forwards going. In the center, Eileen Moran who is a newcomer in our midst and tiny Palm Zappala kept things on the jump, while our forwards were girls worth commenting upon. Evelyn Cummings, with her exceedingly graceful shots, and Mildred MacDonald, whose eye for the basket was astounding, made us very confident in ourselves. Sally Whitman, who is also a newcomer in the school, and an equally good forward, deserves all the love and respect which the girls hold for her. Unfortunately, Anne White, who has been one of our star forwards for the past three years, did not join us 'till late in the season. We feel sure that if she had been with us earlier, we should have met with greater success in our games. Without the assistance of our manager, Sylvia Kaplan, we should have drifted on the rocks, for she has helped us out of many difficulties.

We admire the girls who did not make the team, but who continued to attend the practices until the class games came to an end. We often wonder what we should have done without our Captain, Ruth Hibbard, whom we love so dearly and esteem so highly. We also wish to extend most sincerely our gratitude to Miss Brown, our coach, for her untiring assistance. She can never know how much we appreciate all that she has done for us. Not only has she given us instruction as to the technique of basketball, but she has taught us to "play the game". We can realize now what an asset sportsmanship is in every walk of life.

This year for the first time, the girls have broken away from the regular uniforms that have been used ever since basketball started in the school. Instead of having the usual middies and bloomers, the senior team voted to wear tunics. These are the very latest costumes used in all branches of physical culture. We have Mrs. Conant, the mother of one of the players, to thank for making it possible to have them. Because of her interest in the girls, she was kind enough to spend time and effort in making the uniforms for them. We wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to her.

Although the Juniors won both of our games with them we must not neglect to congratulate them on their fine playing. They well deserve all the praise that they have received. The scores of those two games are as follows:—

1st Game
Seniors	20	Juniors
2nd Game
Seniors	24	Juniors

We also played this year games with teams in several schools including Arlington, Wellesley, Newton and Waltham. The scores of these games are as follows:—

C. H. L. S. '31	3	Arlington '31	41
C. H. L. S. '31	10	Wellesley '31	35
C. H. L. S. '31	18	Newton '31	22
C. H. L. S. '31	23	Waltham '31	23

I'm sure that in the years to come, we shall not forget the good times which we had while participating in the sport. Nor shall we forget the new friends that we made; for, while playing together for only a half year, we were bound very closely together, gaining from our large number of acquaintances, friends.

In this year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirty-one, we, the Senior class, leaving the Cambridge High and Latin School, do, in as right and sane minds as is possible in students facing final examinations and College Boards, construe the following according to the laws of the state and the censorship of the Faculty Staff of this year book. We bequeath:

To the maintenance of misery in this school, our "Macbeths" with specially edited margin notes.

To incoming classes, such of those who do not fear to be overheard in corridor conversation, our favorite nicknames "Flivver", "Buttie", "Flannel", "Cece" to be applied to those whom they seem best to suit.

To a long suffering C. H. L. S. a few of our fellow classmates who either got only half baked during their four year journey under the Latin sun, or whose mothers consider them as yet quite too young to go out in the cruel, cold world.

To the discomfort of future generations the hand carved desks and fancy backless chairs which have developed our athletic inclinations.

To classes yet unborn the skillful ability of our group to tear large sheets of paper into very small bits and scatter same about floors, corridors, and neighbor students' desks, and other ingenious methods of relieving an employment situation which may again arise.

To the incoming freshmen who may wish to express their class spirit as we did, our dollies, jump ropes, and red hair-ribbons.

To masters of the language departments an earnest plea to collaborate and devise and present for criticism a plan by which study pupils may carry on their genial, social conversations without seriously disturbing adjacent recitation classes.

To a specially appointed committee the remaining principal and forthcoming interest of the class funds who will provide suitable portions for the following purposes.

1. To any student who shall, during his high school career, complete a four-year course in both French and German.
2. To subscribe for a year and a half to some current magazine such as the "Judge" or "Life", numbers of which are to be distributed in the deans' offices, teachers' rooms, and main office.
3. To purchase zinc ointment for healing cracks made in the faces of some of the faculty upon glancing through afore-mentioned magazines.
4. To install a system of traffic lights, whistles, and white gloves at certain congested corners in the school.

5. To purchase a large, cushioned wicker cottage set — if we must retain that summery atmosphere in the Classical and English libraries — in place of the camp chairs now installed.
6. For the furtherance of the beach effect, to procure vividly pictured sun umbrellas for the protection of those used to sitting under the leaky roof of the Classical room.
7. To obtain slim, long-handled, specially constructed hand mops with which the future chemistry students of this school may execute the unpleasant duty of swabbing pencilled names and data from the underneath portion of the glass plated desks.
8. To experimental laboratories where will be carried on the work of perfecting a school pen which will neither splutter, fuzz, blot nor leak.
9. To mechanical laboratories where will be carried on the work of perfecting portable vest-pocket theme-writers, automatic pencils, and self-reciting history books which will eliminate the unnecessary use of much energy which might be well spent in desk carving and neighboring class-room intercourse.

To teachers, deans, and headmasters, our sincere appreciation for their untiring assistance to us during the past four years.

Epilogue

To set down the record of our work,
Our play, as well as our aspirations
In such a manner as to stimulate
Those who are left behind "to carry on" —

To voice our gratitude to our teachers
For their untiring, unfaltering, and Inspirational aid and guidance
Throughout our high school career —

To produce a permanent account
Of our activities for the benefit
And pleasure of our friends,
And to the class of 1931, our friendly greetings
We enclose with this book
To be placed among our souvenirs.
